Dear Mikki,

Thank you again for a wonderful presentation to our company last Friday, April 12. Our whole staff is still talking about it and it is obvious that your messages about perspective, balance and attitude hit home!

You know you are in the midst of a great presentation when the CFO of the company decides that the message is so relevant, that instead of limiting the workshop to sales, marketing and management, he is going to shut down the company for the afternoon so that everyone will benefit! As you know, this is what happened and I know that everyone came away from the afternoon ready to apply what he or she learned both at work and outside of the office.

Because of your presentation, I am confident that all of us here at United Learning will “honk our horns less and fix more cars”, have more days like “Charlie”, “ride in more Ferraris” because we asked and asked first, and remember the “Play-Doh Principle” to shape our lives on the job and outside the job any way that we want!

Thank you again, Mikki! Please stay in touch and I hope that we will be able to continue to work together in the future!

Carpe Diem! –
